

Sexual and Other Unlawful Harassment Policy

Workplace harassment is illegal under both federal and California law and is a form of employment discrimination.

What Constitutes Sexual Harassment?:

- Sexual harassment refers to both unwelcome sexual advances, or other visual, verbal, or physical conduct of a sexual nature and actions that create an intimidating, hostile, or offensive work environment based on an employee's sex. Under California law, the offensive conduct need not be motivated by sexual desire, but may be based upon an employee's actual or perceived sex or gender-identity, actual or perceived sexual orientation, and/or pregnancy, childbirth, or related medical conditions. This definition includes many forms of offensive behavior and includes gender-based harassment of a person of the same sex as the harasser, and actions that subject co-workers to a hostile work environment.

What Constitutes Other Unlawful Harassment in the Workplace?:

- Other unlawful harassment is defined as unwelcomed behavior and policies that are based upon an employee's race, color, creed, religion, national origin, age (40 or older), physical or mental disability, and/or genetic information.

Information contained in this policy can also be found in sections 6.7 and 6.8 of the Employee Handbook.

All employees are required to review the Employee Handbook and understand the contents therein.

Periodic sexual harassment and abusive conduct prevention training is required by California law. A supervisor will contact you with details concerning these training courses. All employees are required to complete all training courses in the prescribed time period.
