

Workplace Relationships Policy:

We believe that all employees at every level of the organization should have a clear understanding of what constitutes appropriate workplace relationships.

Permitted Relationships:

- Workplace friendships
- Dating co-workers as long as the below is followed:
 - You may not date anyone you supervise or anyone who supervises you. In other words, you cannot date your boss or anyone who you are the boss of. This is not allowed since it could result in unfair treatment in the workplace (i.e. the supervisor may show favoritism towards the subordinate he/she is dating).
 - You must act professionally at work. Green Dog cannot control your romantic relationship outside of the workplace. However, while at work, you must act in a professional manner and not display any romantic or sexual behavior in the workplace setting. Your romantic relationship cannot affect your professionalism or efficiency at work.

Unpermitted Relationships:

- Romantic relationships in the workplace that jeopardize supervision, efficiency, morale, or security.
- Supervisor/subordinate romantic relationships. If this situation does occur, the supervisor must bring the consensual, intimate relationship with an employee to Green Dog management's attention for appropriate action.
